

Weekly Work Memo
November 26-November 30, 2012

Timothy Sandole
Belfer Center Associate/Campus Wikipedian

Monday, November 26

1. Revised and published "Chinese Century," which can be found in the following link: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Chinese_Century (4 hours)
2. Started researching U.S.-Russian relations (4 hours)

Tuesday, November 27

1. Revised and published "United States-Russian Relations" and included report co-written by Graham Allison titled "Russia and U.S. National Interests: Why Should Americans Care?" I contributed to the "United States and Russian Federation" heading and created "U.S. Interests" and "Russian Interests" subheadings:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Russia%E2%80%93United_States_relations#United_States_and_the_Russian_Federation

Wednesday, November 28

1. Started researching intelligence operations and analyses. I focused on the Team B affair (8 hours)

Thursday, November 29

1. Drafted on MS Word a major contribution to the Wikipedia article "Team B" and sent to Jim for review (4 hours)
2. Started researching Henry Kissinger's "On China" (4 hours)

Friday, November 30

1. Continued researching Henry Kissinger's "On China"

For Next Week - Publish/code articles dealing with the various schools of thought on China's rise. Publish/code article on Team B affair.